

Improving the Health and Well-Being of Latinas: Tools for Public Health and Social Service Providers

The annual Latina Health Symposium provides a forum for participants to come together to learn and discuss health-related topics that impact Hispanic/Latina women.

This year's theme will focus on culturally relevant healthcare delivery. Speakers will cover topics such as participating in research, patient navigation, and best practices in community health worker models. We hope you can join us!

Who should attend:

- Public health professionals
- Lay health workers (promotores)
- Clinicians
- Social service professionals
- Community health workers and educators
- Outreach workers
